AN UNWEDDED PAIR IN SYLVAN LODGE

SOCIAL SENSATION AND MARINE TUMULT ARE PRESENTED AT THE MATINEE.

Bannister Told the Thrilling Tale of Encounter with Inebriated Assistant Aboard Rosamond—Oriental Jehus Violate Road Rules.

The District Court attracted its full quota of the curious and the seekers after sensationalism yesterday morning, when the adultery case of A. J. Gonsalves the hackman and Mrs. Mary Young, the wife of William Young the linotype operator, figured as defendants.

While portions of the testimony were of a salacious nature, the shadow of disappointment hovered over the expectant face of many an eager listener in his attempt to gather the drift of a lurid tale of domestic infelicity and illicit love.

Gonsalves was defended by Attorney Straus and Vivas. Mrs. Young's interests were looked after by Attorney A. G. M. Robertson.

The complaint charged Gonsalves and Mrs. Mary Young with committing adultery. Both denied the soft impeachment.

Rev. Henry H. Parker, pastor of Kawaiahaeo church, testified that he had performed the ceremony on July 4, 1900, which joined Mrs. Mary H. Dutro and William Young in the bonds of matrimony.

Captain Kane of the Police Department proved the most important witness. He related all the particulars connected with the expedition made by the officers at an early hour Monday morning to a house in the Puna valley, led by the husband of the woman. Admittance was demanded and after a time the door was opened.

Kane declared that he saw both defendants within, arrayed in robes de nuit. He insisted that but one bed in the house showed indications of having been occupied.

Mrs. Young and Gonsalves were a unit in the declaration that Gonsalves was a roomer at the place and had a right to be upon the premises.

Despite a vehement denial to the entire charge, the court refused to discharge the defendants. Gonsalves was assessed a fine of $75, while Mrs. Young escaped with $30 and costs.

Ah Cheong and Yong Nung, charged with larceny in the first degree in which a quantity of jewelry was alleged to have been taken from the premises of a Japanese, were committed to the Circuit Court for trial.

When G. C. Bannister appeared in police court yesterday morning he came several fathoms from resembling the bold bad desperado that he was pictured by D. B. Brown, a seaman on the schooner Rosamond. Bannister swore out a complaint charging Brown with assault. Brown in turn declared that Bannister came to greet his arrival on shipboard Tuesday morning, armed with a murderous looking meat axe in one hand and a stove poker in the other. Bannister is cook on the Rosamond and Brown is his assistant. Brown was granted shore leave Saturday last, but it is alleged that he lingered fondly over several cups filled with nutbrown fluid, with the result that he failed to put in an appearance for several days. Bannister claimed that all the work fell upon his overburdened shoulders, and when Brown showed up, under the influence of liquor, high words followed. Bannister, being much the older man, received the worst of the conflict. It was claimed that Brown employed a revolver in delivering some of the blows administered to the anatomy of Bannister.

Olsen and Miller, seamen, testified to witnessing the assault and seeing the second mate separate the men. They bore testimony to the flourishing of the revolver.

The tales of tribulation attendant on a life in a ship's galley was cut off by the court imposing a fine of $50 and costs upon Brown.

Fukamichi, chief navigator of a dump cart, denied the charge of assault upon Lino Cabral. However, the appearance of the latter plainly indicated that he had been up against a pretty severe scuffle. The Japanese was fined $5 and costs.

Four drunks pleaded guilty to the charge and suffered the usual penalty. Japanese teamsters to the number of three encumbered the police dock.

The system of navigation employed by the average Oriental Jehu almost baffles the understanding of the authorities. They were charged with violating the hitching ordinance. Five dollars and costs fell to the lot of each defendant.

The honest blacksmith is seldom inclined to give up his vise.

GEORGE STRATEMEYER MEETS HIS VENERABLE MOTHER

The Genial Honolulu Man Visits His New Jersey Home After Twenty-seven Years' Absence.

From the Elizabeth (N. Y.) Daily Journal, July 24.

"He's the same George!" was the exclamation of Mrs. Stratemeyer, the aged mother of George Stratemeyer, as he entered the old home, 24 Palmer street, at 11 o'clock this morning, after an absence from this city since January 28, 1874.

Mr. Stratemeyer, when a very young man, was engaged in the sign painting and lettering business on Broad street, opposite West Grand street, when he resolved to go to Honolulu, which place has since been his home, and where he has been very successfully engaged in business. He was honored by having held the position of deputy collector of the port of Honolulu for seven years.

Mr. Stratemeyer started from Honolulu on the 10th of July, and reached San Francisco on the 17th instant. He spent a day at that place, and then came by railroad to New York, stopping at Buffalo to visit the exposition, and reaching New York last night.

He came to this city this morning having previously sent a letter from Honolulu and a telegram from San Francisco to the effect that he proposed visiting Elizabeth.

The first call he made this morning was on his brother, Louis C. Stratemeyer, and after greeting had been exchanged he proceeded to the residence of his brother-in-law, Frederick L. Heldritter, on New York avenue.

Mr. Heldritter had been informed of his coming, and after a brief stay at the house he was taken in Mr. Heldritter's coach to the old home on Palmer street, being accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Heldritter.

A Journal reporter arrived simultaneously with Mr. Stratemeyer, and there was joy in the household when the long-absent son crossed the threshold and was embraced by his mother. Tears were shed by both, for it was many years since such a great joy had come into the hearts of each other.

Mr. Stratemeyer is in good health, and cordially greeted the Journal reporter. He spoke of affairs in Honolulu as being in a prosperous condition. Its inhabitants are contented, prosperous and happy, and rejoice that they are a part of the United States.

Sugar is the staple product at the present time, and there is a large traffic in it.

Mr. Stratemeyer says he likes Honolulu, its people, its climate, etc., else he would not have married there, and been content to spend there the remainder of his life.

He has seven children, and one of his sons is a marine clerk in the Honolulu custom house there. Mr. Stratemeyer will spend several weeks in Elizabeth.

While collector of the port of Honolulu he forwarded to his brother Louis the first flag which was raised over the custom house after the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands to the United States. This was presented, at his request, to Company C, Phil Kearny Guard, at Fort Wadsworth soon after the command had enlisted for service in the Spanish-American war.

Many Think So, But They're Not.

"I can't understand," said a customer to us the other day, "how a dry goods store can continue prosperous while claiming to sell at or under cost, for I assume that honorable merchants mean just what they say."

This lady was not aware that the advertised articles are but a small portion of a firm's stock, and that only extraordinary values can find their way into print. A merchant who advertises falsehoods is doomed to failure. No wise one would do so.
